BANQUETING HALL.

Plas Mawr, HIGH STREET, CONWAY.

This "Great Mansion" was built three centuries ago, by Robert Wynne, son of John Wynne ap Meredith, of Gwydir, near Llanrwst, of whom the well-known historian, Sir John Wynne, Bart., was nephew. The approach in High Street is through a portico ornamented with the arms of England. Over the doorway and within the portico is the Greek inscription "anexou, apexou," with the Latin "sustine, abstine," (bear forebear). On the house will also be found the date 1576. Ascending a flight of stone steps from the Courtyard, the terrace is reached; and passing through the first doorway on the right, the visitor enters a spacious Banqueting Hall, wainscotted and with fixed seats. The palace is now in the possession of THE ROYAL CAMBRIAN ACADEMY OF ART, having been leased to them by LORD MOSTYN, the present owner.

The Banqueting Hall.

The Banqueting Hall is a large old fashioned wainscotted room, thirty feet by twenty, by thirteen in height; along one side and end are black oak fixed seats, with scroll work rail and turned supports. The magnificent fretwork ceiling with central Tudor roses, and the elaborate mouldings and crests over the capacious fireplace, impress the visitor on first entering the room, and at once strike him that he is in no ordinary building. At the further end, in the recessed wall, is a large stone mullioned window with quarrel pane lattices of various hue, according to age; on the opposite side of the fire-place are two other windows of the same picturesque description. The oak leaf is the chief ornamentation of the frieze. The Oak, in the language of flowers, is symbolic of hospitality; we may, therefore, infer that the oak leaf was introduced into the frieze to indicate hearty welcome; the language of flowers being more generally recognised and understood in those days.

In the centre, over the fire-place on a shield is the coat of arms of the Wynne family.

family (by whom this mansion was built) together with the date, 1580. On the quaint figures which are intended as supports are the initials R.W. (Robert Wynne). It is curious to note the manner in which the large blocks of stone which form the chimney breast are dovetailed together, the side supports being additionally strengthened by large blocks built into the wall, the exposed ends being shaped and carved. The broken hearthstone is bound round by the original unpretentious fender, which is also of oak. At some period, ages ago, five or six feet was taken off this room for the requirements of the late tenants, and the original solid oak screen, whose massive frame-work, rudely moulded, stands firm and strong as it did three centuries ago, is partly hid by a lighter-constructed oak-panelled screen, which is supposed to have formed the wainscot of Queen Elizabeth's sitting room. The floor, also of oak, is now sunken and uneven. At the further end of the room is the large banqueting table, on six massive legs, and framework of great strength ; it is still capable of doing great things in the way of a banquet should the opportunity present itself.

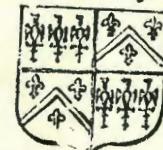

We may here note that the ceiling of the grand hall and staircase of the Victoria House at the

SMALL KITCHEN.

Small Kitchen.

The most characteristic feature of the small kitchen is the fine stone arch of the huge fire-place, at one end of which, in the thickness of the outer wall, is built a stone oven, which is in excellent preservation. The usual kitchen requisites have long since disappeared with the exception of the spit-irons, which may be seen in the west kitchen, or in a room at the further end of the building. It will be noticed that a small portion of the arch at the right hand corner has been worn away with the sharpening of knives. Two stout black oak beams cross the ceiling, from which is suspended an old-fashioned bread safe.

In some isolated farmhouses at the present day these old safes are still in use.

No. 3 Room is reached by passing through the doorway opposite the one we entered. But,

" Stoop boys! Stoop!! this gate
Instructs you how to adore the heavens; and bows you
To a morning's holy office; the gates of monarchs
Are arched so high that giants may get through
And keep their impious turbans on, without Good Morrow to the sun—"

Stoop boys,—stoop!"

No. 3 Room.

No. 3 Room would be formerly used by the retainers in attendance at the side gate leading through the passage we have just crossed to the inner Court Yard, which is a beautiful and perfect specimen of architecture of the Tudor period—a most interesting reminiscence of bygone days.

Continuing along the passage and ascending one step and turning to the right we enter Queen Elizabeth's Sitting Room.

The ceiling and walls of this room above the wainscot (which was originally oak-panelled) are rich in decorative plaster work, Coat of Arms, Crests, &c., connected with the Wynne and other families, through them, associated with Plas Mawr. Above the fire-place are the Royal Arms of England as used in the reign of Queen Elizabeth; the Griffin or Dragon being the supporter of the Lion in the place of the Unicorn as now used, which came in with the Stuart line. The letters E.R. (Elizabeth Regina) being on either side of the Royal Arms, which is surrounded by other Crests and decorative embellishments ; the portcullis of Henry VIII. being conspicuous. On either side of the windows, the Arms of the Wynne family occupy the central positions, above which are the letters R.W. (Robert Wynne) in different designs, whilst below are the figures 15 on one side and 77 on the other side, supposed to be the date when the room was originally decorated ; all the ornamental plaster work being picked out in correct heraldic colours. Our very great grandfather, time, has made sad havoc with the wall opposite the fire-place, where will be noticed, amongst other enrichments, the remains of the letters D G and @ (J) W, meaning probably Dorothy Griffith and John Wynne.

On looking at these walls we are forcibly reminded how true is the beautiful line,

"Change and decay, in all around I see."

There are small recessed windows in two corners of the room, which, during the palmy days when the family occupied the house, would look into the garden with which the house was at the time surrounded. The massive oak partition or screen opposite the window is of immense strength, the centre, both horizontal and upright timbers, being carved. Above the door are carved the Tudor rose and leaves very finely cut. The old oak panelled door is worth attention, being made with mitre joints ; all the mouldings being worked in the solid.

Leaving this quaint room, we proceed to the one opposite, viz., The West Kitchen.

The West Kitchen:

The West Kitchen fire-place is about 9ft. 6in. wide by 5ft. deep, and near 6ft. to the underside of the fine arch ; built into the walls at either end are what were originally stone ovens.

The heavy timbers crossing the ceiling, black with age, are still perfectly sound. An old cradle spit is suspended from the beams ; this was formerly used for cooking turkeys and geese. The spit irons are in the fire-place.

Judging from the style of the window mullions and other structural features, it may be fairly assumed that this end of Plas Mawr is the oldest portion of the building,—though it is difficult to determine the date of either portion. Experts in Architecture are, however, agreed that the mansion was built in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

It may just be pointed out that the window mullions at this end of the building are roughly squared on the inside, whilst on the outside they are rounded, and fixed slightly within the breast of the external wall, with projecting moulded window heads outside. Contrast these with the mullions and window heads at the other end of the building, where they are found moulded on both sides, and projecting outside the breast of the wall, whilst the window-heads are flush with the wall, and are constructed with mitre ends to prevent the stone giving way above the windows.

The door by the Kitchen window opens out into the inner Court Yard, referred to earlier on. The door in the oak screen, adjoining the one by which we enter the Kitchen, opens into a small pantry about 12ft. square, by 10ft. in height—a peep into it may be obtained through the doorway on the left just outside the Kitchen. It may be noticed that the framework of the pantry windows, instead of the usual stone mullion is made of four inch oak placed cornerways.

On stepping out of the Kitchen, turn to the right and up the first flight of the fine spiral staircase,—through the doorway, and turn to the left into the Wynne Room.

THE WYNNE ROOM.

Wynne Room.

It is interesting to trace the history of decorative or modelled plaster work with which Plas Mawr is so rich : at the present day there is no other such perfect specimen existing in Great Britain.

The British Museum shows us that the ancients understood plaster-modelling. There are still a few ruinous specimens left to show that the Art was practised in Ancient Greece, and the excavations at Pompeii reveal that there were adepts at this class of work in the days of its splendour, viz., one thousand eight hundred years ago.

With the fall of the Roman Empire, this Art became nearly extinct. In the sixteenth century it was introduced into France by Francis I., and about the same period by Henry VIII. into England ; the half-timbered houses of that period being especially adapted to display this class of raised plaster-work. The King employed the most skilful Art-workmen during the last ten years of his reign in embellishing "Nonsuch," of which no relic now remains ; being dismantled during the Parliamentary Wars.

Arms of Robert and Dorothy Wynn.

THE WYNNE ROOM.

Pepys, alluding to "Nonsuch" in 1665, says, "All the house filled with figures of stories"; and Spencer, in his lines,

"Gold was the 'Parget,' and the ceiling bright Did shine all scaly with great plates of gold," refers to the "illuminated" plaster-work, or pargetry.

It was during the troublous times of the Commonwealth that this class of work fell into disuse.

The Wynne Room is supposed to have been the bedroom occupied by the Earl of Leicester. Portions of his crest, viz., the Boar, and the Bear and Ragged Stave, appearing on the walls and ceiling; the date 1577 being on the corners by the shield over the fire-place in this room.

A short passage on the right-hand side of the fire-place in the Wynne Room leads to the Victoria Room, erected by the Royal Cambrian Academy in 1805.

QUEEN ELIZABETH'S ROOM.

On the 11th of February, 1896, this Gallery was officially opened by the Hon. Mrs. H. Lloyd Mostyn, on which occasion a grand fancy dress ball was held, the whole of the rooms of Plas Mawr being utilised on the occasion.

Queen Elizabeth's Bedroom.

This room is supposed to have been used by Queen Elizabeth. It is not known what has become of the original furniture of Plas Mawr; but the bedstead said to be used by the Queen is now at Gloddaeth, near Llandudno.

This room, same as the others, has been stripped of the oak-panelled wainscot. Above the fire-place are the arms of Robert Wynne, with the initials R. G., most probably Robert of Gwydir, as the Gwydir family resided at Gwydir Castle, near Llanrwst, before Plas Mawr was built. The letters R. G. and J. G. are also on each side of the centre windows, which can be read as before, Robert and John of Gwydir.

It will be noticed that each ceiling in Plas Mawr is different in design, each one being very beautiful. Amongst the animals and birds on this ceiling and walls are the griffin, the owl, the stork, lions, and lion's faces, the heads of deer with antlers, eaglets, stags, Fleur-de-lis, Saracen'sheads, boars, unicorn, dragons, swans, a dove just about to settle on a branch ; also Tudor roses and other ornaments.

The oak screen is almost a repetition of the one already described in the Queen's Sitting Room.

THE RECEPTION ROOM.

The Reception Room.

The Reception Room is nearly 40ft. by 20ft. by 11ft. in height, with a recess in the wall opposite the fire-place about 8ft. square; there are indications that this recess was an addition after the house was built. A new floor had to be laid in this room in 1888, but the old fixed seats remain, and are in the same charming style as described in the Banqueting Hall. Two of the original tables are also in the room. The initials on the walls and ceilings are repetitions of what has been previously described. It will be noticed that all the fire-places in the house are different in design.

The fine geometrical ceiling of this room must have had an imposing appearance in the palmy days of Plas Mawr.

It was in this room that the Queen of Roumania took afternoon tea on the 11th of September, 1890.

Leaving this room by the door opposite to the one we enter, we pass underneath a secret chamber or hiding place, built in the thickness of the wall adjoining the breast of the chimney which runs up from the small kitchen; this was used during the turbulent times of the Reformation for the concealment of proscribed persons.

Passing underneath this place of concealment, and ascending the five steps to the left, and keeping again to the left we come to the Lantern Room.

The Lantern Room.

The Lantern Room is so called because of the old lantern on the left side of the window. It is formed by an opening through the wall tapering inwards at the sides and top, with a small angular window projecting outwards from the face of the external wall. In olden times a candle would be set so as to light the Terrace and Courtyard below. This room was never embellished with decorative plaster-work, as is the case with the more important rooms of the house.

This room is the reputed "haunted room" of Plas Mawr.

After leaving this room, go past the steps by which these apartments were reached, and inspect the fine casts, models, and a series of beautiful etchings on the walls.

Above the door will be noticed a specimen of the original Watling work, showing clearly how the partition walls were formerly constructed.

Descending the five stairs, and ascending the old spiral staircase opposite, the look-out tower is reached, from which charming views of the surrounding country may be obtained, then, by following the staircase to the bottom, No. 1 Room is again reached.

Plas Mawr was visited by their Royal Highnesses The Duke and Duchess of York (now the Prince and Princess of Wales) and Party on the 28th of April, 1899.

In Plas Mawr there are 365 windows, 52 doors, and 52 steps up the Tower.

The Haunted Room.

The following is an extract from local papers of September, 1893:—

A HAUNTED ROOM AT PLAS MAWR.

[FROM A CORRESPONDENT.]

In addition to its intrinsic charm as one of the most perfectly preserved specimens of Elizabethan Manor Houses now existing in this country, Plas Mawr, has an attraction that one almost instinctively looks for in connection with such an old building; and that is a haunted room.

There can be no doubt about it, for I have the story from one who is both an ear and eye-witness of the fact that one of the rooms in Plas Mawr is haunted.

The story was told to me by one of the officials of the R.C.A., on the occasion of the visit of Sir Stuart Knill, Lord Mayor of London, to Conway.

The official remarked to me and my two companions, whom he found in the room in question, "Ah, you are studying the haunted room, are you?" We laughed, and said that we did not know that it was haunted, or even that it was said to be haunted.

"Very few people know it," he said, "but it is a fact, and it is supposed to have some connection with the Priest's Hiding-place, which you pass under on leaving the Reception Room."

We were delighted, and explained that we had not heard of the Priest's any more than we had of the Haunted Room, and begged of him to let us see that interesting recess in which, perhaps, some poor recusant had hidden himself in the stern times of good Queen Bess.

HIDING-PLACE,

"Come this way," he said; and we followed our guide up the far staircase to the right hand corner of the attic where we saw a recess, about 5 feet in depth, by 4 feet wide. It is uncovered now, and would afford no security against the most superficial search, but in the old days it was cunningly and heavily covered and would not betray the cavity beneath. But this was not the whole of the Hiding-place. If, by chance, pursuers discovered this recess, and managed to open the trap-door, no fugitive would be visible, for the inner side of the Hiding-place consisted of a sliding-panel which gave entrance to "inner-sanctuary" (so to speak), into which the fugitive would slip on finding that his first hiding-place had been discovered, leaving nothing for the pursuer to gaze at but an empty space, and, of course, the chances were a hundred to one against the pursuers suspecting the existence of an ante-room, and so the hunted priest would, let us hope, escape.

There were other details in connection with this attic (which one of my friends—a devout Catholic—supposed might have been a secret Chapel) of great interest, but I will only briefly state on what grounds our guide maintains that the room in which he first found us is haunted. He says that he was alone in the building late one night, writing. He had been round every room before that, previous to closing, to see that all the visitors had left the house for the day. Suddenly, in the silence of the night, he heard a measured footfall begin to pace the room over his head. He listened. The footfall continued, till he, not liking to go up alone, and in the dark, left and went home.

Occasionally, visitors have said they are sure that there is a haunted room in Plas Mawr. "Indeed!

THE HAUNTED ROOM.

"Why?" they are asked. "Oh! because I feel it; I am a medium," they say, or words to like effect. "Which room is it?" they are next asked, and invariably they have indicated what my confrere has now termed the "Haunted Room."

Lion Rampant.

(Borne by many ancestors of Queen Elizabeth).

The following story taken from the Weekly News, August 15th, 1902, is an attempt to elucidate the mystery:—

The Lantern Room of Plas Mawr, Conway, has long enjoyed the reputation of being haunted, but the why or wherefore has until lately been a mystery. The story, however, has been unearthed; and as considerable interest is felt as to the cause of the creepy sensations which are experienced by numbers of visitors, I will briefly narrate the story as told to the members of the British Medical Association, who visited Plas Mawr on the 2nd of August last (1902), the first occasion, I believe, on which the story has been related, as it were, publicly.

It is called

THE OLD HOUSEKEEPER'S STORY OF THE HAUNTED ROOM.

(A TALE OF THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY.)

One afternoon about the middle of November, in a year towards the close of the sixteenth century, the lady of the house with her three-year-old child was in the look-out tower of Plas Mawr, anxiously watching for the return of her lord and master, who had been absent at the wars for over six months. She remained in the tower until darkness had fairly set in, when, numbed with cold and fatigue, with her child in her arms, she sorrowfully turned to descend the staircase, when she stumbled and fell down the steep flight, herself and her child seriously hurt.

The old housekeeper had them conveyed to a bed in the Lantern Room, which was next to her own room, and the family doctor attended to the sufferers, warning the housekeeper to keep a watchful eye upon them, as they were in a critical condition; and to summons him immediately if any change for the worse should be noticed.

Later in the evening there were undoubtedly symptoms for anxiety, and the doctor was sent for. The old doctor not being in, his assistant, Dr. Dick, as he was familiarly called, at once answered the housekeeper's summons.

Doctor Dick was a little, light, active, energetic man, bright and brisk, with a highly nervous temperament; he was a general favourite, and, although he had completed his student days with high distinction, he had not as yet had extensive experience, which would, no doubt, increase his nervousness when attending a dangerous case. He found the child at the point of death, from concussion, and placed her on a low couch below the window opposite the door; he then gave every possible attention to the mother, who now betrayed evident symptoms of premature confinement, and suffering from the greatest agony. Dr. Dick saw the extreme gravity of the situation, and said he would at once fetch the old doctor; but the housekeeper, whose sympathetic chords were touched with the moans and labour of her mistress, pushed him back into the room and fastened the heavy door, saying her lady must not be left, and intimated that she would send the only retainer in the house for the doctor, which she accordingly did.

He, however, did not go to the doctor, nor was he seen again in Conway until after the lapse of over half-a-century.

In a short time, after momentarily expecting his return, she became aware of an awful stillness in the Lantern Room, which, after the preceding events, made her blood run chill. She called at the door, which she dare not open; first to Doctor Dick, then to her mistress, without any response, save the howling of the wind outside, and occasional heavy peals of thunder. Feeling herself utterly incapable in this dreadful state of uncertainty, and the storm becoming so furious, she dare not venture abroad.

Suddenly she became aware of a heavy footstep crossing the Banquet Hall, then coming up the first spiral staircase, and the lord of the house came quickly along; he pushed past the pale and trembling housekeeper into the Lantern Room,—now a chamber of horror. Doctor Dick was nowhere to be seen, the windows were fastened on the inside, and the door had not been opened since the housekeeper pushed him back into the room. The dying embers of a wood fire were on the hearth, and a dim light in the lantern. The three-year-old child lay dead on the low couch beneath the window opposite the door, the mistress lay dead on the bed, and an infant, prematurely born, lay dead in the window on the right hand side of the fire-place.

Such was the knight's reception on his return from the wars. Although inured to scenes of death on a field of battle, he was now completely horror-struck. He could only gaze on the dear ones. He could only ask, "Who has been here?" The poor old housekeeper, with tears streaming down her aged cheeks, could only reply,—"Dr. Dick is somewhere in the room."

THE HAUNTED ROOM.

The knight quickly drew his sword, but Doctor Dick could not be found. The housekeeper attempted some words of consolation and sympathy, and offered to relieve him of his armour. But, too excited to listen to words of comfort, he pushed the housekeeper into her own room, saying, "Leave me! leave me! I'll never leave this room again until I've been revenged on Doctor Dick. Day-light will tell the story"!!! He shut the door and paced the room heavily for hours with repeated exclamations of sorrow and anger, till at last with one wild cry of bitter anguish he fell dead at the foot of the bed on which his dead wife lay.

The housekeeper remained in agony, amid storm and death, throughout that long and terrible night; at last day-light slowly dawned, and assistance came. On entering the room there lay the master and the mistress of the house and their family,—all dead.

Doctor Dick was never seen again; the surmise being that, although perfectly innocent and blameless, he sought escape from the gruesome surroundings by means of the chimney, which communicates with the chimneys from the Banquet Hall and the Small Kitchen. It was also said that passages from the chimneys communicated with the various hiding-places, and in this labyrinth of gloom he got lost, and overcome with the fumes of the charcoal smoke, he slept the sleep of death. One of the passages can be seen high up in the chimney from the Small Kitchen fire-place.

On stormy nights, when wind and rain, thunder and lightning, are striving for mastery with each other; people in telling the story to awe-struck children on Christmas eve, used to say that it was Doctor Dick trying to find his way out.

THE HAUNTED ROOM.

About the middle of the seventeenth century, an aged sea-faring man walked into Conway; he turned out to be the retainer of Plas Mawr, who had been sent for the Doctor on that terrible night. It appears he was hardly out of the house when he was seized by a press-gang and hurried off to a vessel in the harbour, which immediately put to sea, and he had been in foreign parts ever since. He had not seen Doctor Dick or anyone from Conway since that dreadful night, nor was he aware of the fate of the family.

With certain superstitious people the belief is that the knight still walks the room to be revenged on Doctor Dick, whose bones they affirm are still somewhere in the chimney, and until they are found and laid to rest, with his forefathers in the Churchyard, the ghost of Plas Mawr will never be laid.
